

Inducting young people

ir first time working in a social care environment. They may be excited, unsure what to expect or nervous about the workplace.

Talk to your new starter and listen to any concerns they may have. Understanding their needs and reassuring them can make all the difference to having a positive start to their employment with you.

Sharing a thorough induction plan with them can